Status By Era

Pre-Empire Era: Duke/Duchess. The secretive power behind Equateiy's throne. House Kivier acts as the unofficial and official rulers of Equateiy, viewing themselves as royalty though they never formally claimed a crown. Their true history remains shrouded in mystery.

Solis's Era: Duke Reasaec Kivier financed Orcus's side of the Aicruan civil war through Equateiy's wealth. During Year Five of the war, Reasaec traveled to Aicruae alongside Grand Sorcerer Sevtor to personally support Orcus. When the war turned, Reasaec attempted to flee by ship back to Equateiy. Solis personally attacked the fleeing ship, took Reasaec's head, and sent it to Gherci with a note written in Ananara: "The head of a rat, do as you please with it." The King of Gherci had Reasaec's head preserved, his mouth forced open, and hung it at the castle entrance.

Why They Matter

House Kivier founded Equateiy itself in 8,900 BR, making it the oldest nation on the continent and House Kivier the oldest noble house still in existence. They chose never to become monarchs, and no one knows why. That mystery is part of what makes them dangerous. They rule without a crown, control the wealthiest nation in the world, and keep their real history locked away. Equateiy's strategy has always been economic leverage over military confrontation: "Smiling in person, scheming behind the scenes" defines their diplomacy. Their currency, the Pel, is valued at roughly $50 each, the highest in the world, and their banking system underpins the economies of multiple nations, including Coelum, which gives 40% of its national earnings to Equateiy for continued support.

Heraldry

Crest: A magnificent golden lion's head with its mouth open, revealing a red tongue, set against a bright yellow shield framed by a distinctive checkered border in alternating cream and yellow squares. The lion is rendered in bold black outlines with detailing in its mane and facial features, dominating the center of the crest with an expression of fierce nobility.

Symbolism: The golden lion symbolizes supreme courage, royal authority, and the unwavering strength to lead. The lion has long represented kingship and dominion, making it the emblem of a ducal house that values staths and command over all rivals. The checkered border representing thinking and calculated moves.

Power & Influence

Source of Power

Economic dominance, banking, financial leverage, and secrecy. House Kivier controls the wealthiest nation in the known world and uses economic entanglement rather than military force to exert influence.

Values

Wealth, commerce, cosmopolitanism, meritocracy. Equateiy is a society where wealth determines status more than birth.

Reputation

House Kivier's true history remains a mystery, partially because Equateiy is so old and partially because the house is so secretive. They view themselves as royalty despite never taking a crown. Other nations view Equateiy as "the place of sin, the land of secrets."

History

Founding (8,900 BR)

Yemaser of House Kivier founded Equateiy in 8,900 BR during the Warriors' Age. It is among the oldest of existing countries, with some claim to formation before the Warriors' Age, though depending on who you ask, that claim holds no grounds. House Kivier became the country's founders and first official nobles, but why they chose not to become monarchs remains unknown.

Rise to Power

[TBD]

Major Achievements

[TBD]

Major Disgraces

Duke Reasaec Kivier's failed gambit in backing Orcus during the Aicruan civil war. Reasaec was beheaded at sea by Solis, and his head was sent to Gherci as a trophy.

Notable Members

Yemaser of House Kivier (dates unknown)

Founder of House Kivier and Equateiy

Founded Equateiy in 8,900 BR, establishing it as the first kingdom during the Warriors' Age. Beyond the founding, almost nothing about Yemaser is known publicly, a pattern of secrecy that House Kivier has maintained ever since.

Duke Reasaec Kivier (dates unknown, died 7,217 BR)

Duke of Equateiy

Equateiy's chief financier of Orcus's war effort during the Aicruan civil war. During Year Five, he traveled to Aicruae alongside Grand Sorcerer Sevtor to personally support Orcus. When the war turned against Orcus, Reasaec attempted to flee by ship back to Equateiy. Solis personally attacked the fleeing ship and took Reasaec's head. He sent it to Gherci with a note written in Ananara: "The head of a rat, do as you please with it." The King of Gherci had Reasaec's head preserved, his mouth forced open, and hung it at the castle entrance.

Role in Narrative

Book Appearances: Book 1 (A Tale of a Thousand Songs), through Duke Reasaec Kivier's involvement in the Aicruan civil war and Equateiy's financial backing of Orcus.

Plot Significance: House Kivier's gamble on Orcus represents Equateiy's broader strategy of using wealth to destabilize rival nations. The failure of that gambit, and Reasaec's gruesome execution, demonstrates the limits of economic power against direct military force.

Key Members in Story: Duke Reasaec Kivier (DECEASED).
