Status By Era

Pre-Empire Era: High Kings and Masters of the Tower. The ruling house of Vikitsv and the most powerful line of magic users in existence. House Orana governs through the Council of Scholars and commands the Magic Tower, the single most important institution in the country.

Solis's Era: Destroyed. After Grand Sorcerer Sevtor's magical attack on Valea killed 15,000 people during Year Five of the civil war, Solis retaliated by having Liacaion poured into House Orana's chambers and setting them ablaze. Nearly every member of the house burned to death. Only Mekean Orana escaped, dyeing her hair and settling in Equateiy to continue the bloodline.

Crandona's Era: [TBD]

Minara's Era: [TBD] (Note: Mekean Orana's descendants eventually produce Merigen Bleelack.)

Why They Matter

House Orana is the reason Vikitsv matters at all. They are the Magic Tower, and the Magic Tower is the state. Without them, the country is just a frozen mountain with blue-haired people and no arable land.

Their power comes from blood. Not politics, not military alliances, not money. Blood. House Orana descends directly from Verna's eldest son Liaerto I, and Verna personally had Liaerto drink his blood, making the Orana line the purest and most powerful magical bloodline currently in existence. That distinction puts them in a category no other noble house can touch.

But that power painted a target on them. When Grand Sorcerer Sevtor entered the Aicruan Civil War on Orcus's side and leveled Valea, killing 15,000 people in a single magical strike, Solis didn't just retaliate against Sevtor. He burned the entire house alive. The most devastating single act of magic in the civil war era was answered with the complete destruction of the family that made it possible.

House Orana also guards a dangerous secret: they likely know of the Ilkai herb's existence on Mount Aicren. Within Vikitsv's scholarly circles, even the knowledge of Ilkai is considered forbidden.

Heraldry

Crest: A fearsome black bear rampant upon a diagonal azure band that cuts across a silver field, all framed within an ornate blue border adorned with white fleur-de-lis. The bear stands upright in a posture of supreme authority, its claws extended as if reaching for the crown symbol positioned above. A clear representation of their position as High Kings and Masters of the Tower.

Symbolism: The black bear, powerful and protective yet capable of terrible ferocity, represents both the sacrifices made to maintain their rule and the unyielding strength required to hold the highest seat of power. The bear also embodies their motto, "The Blood of the fallen, true and strong." The diagonal band suggests the path of ascension. Silver and blue represent nobility, truth, and unwavering loyalty to the realm.

Motto: "The Blood of the Fallen, True and Strong."

Power & Influence

Source of Power

Magic. Pure, unmatched, bloodline magic. House Orana is a direct pure breed line of Verna descent through his eldest son Liaerto I. Verna personally had Liaerto I drink his blood, which makes the Orana line the most powerful magic users currently in existence. The Magic Tower, which holds all of Vikitsv's power, is their seat of authority.

Internal Power Structure

Vikitsv operates as a magocracy/meritocracy. House Orana rules through the Council of Scholars, and the Grand Sorcerer (head of House Orana) leads the Magic Tower. The Magic Tower can train roughly 400 wizards at a time.

Military Forces

[TBD] (Note: Vikitsv's primary defense is geographic. The mountain location makes invasion impractical, and the three-month journey up Mount Aicren has killed many who attempted it. The Magic Tower itself functions as a military asset, as demonstrated by Sevtor's attack on Valea.)

Lands & Income

Seat: The Magic Tower, located on the right side of Mount Aicren, below the capital city of Berlailia.

Alliances & Rivalries

Allied Houses

[TBD]

Faction Allies: As members of the Nationalist Party, House Orana shares political alignment with House Renililas, House Yailk, House Qari, and other noble houses who believe Vikitsv is superior to other nations and must protect its interests at all costs.

International Alliances

Equateiy (Strategic Ally): Both secular, both opposed to the traditional religious bloc. Allied together backing Orcus during the Aicruan Civil War.

Rival Houses

[TBD]

International Rivals

Gherci (Ideological Opposition): Vikitsv's focus on magic directly opposes Gherci's religious orthodoxy. At international gatherings, Vikitsv sided with Equateiy's proposals, favoring scientific and less theocratic policies.

House Culture

Religion

Monotheistic worship of Iswan, goddess of alchemy. Respect for Nellebrie who created Mount Aicren. House Orana and the Magic Tower likely know of the Ilkai herb's existence on Mount Aicren but guard this knowledge carefully. Even within Vikitsv's scholarly circles, knowledge of Ilkai is considered forbidden.

Traditions

Values

[TBD]

Reputation

[TBD]

History

Founding

[TBD] (Note: House Orana was founded by descendants of Verna's eldest son Liaerto I, who Verna personally had drink his blood. The Magic Tower was created in 7,749 BR.)

Rise to Power

[TBD] (Note: Their pure Verna bloodline and command of the Magic Tower made them the natural rulers of Vikitsv under a magocracy/meritocracy system.)

The Aicruan Civil War

House Orana backed Orcus's rebel side to prevent the Solisian empire from threatening magical autonomy. Grand Sorcerer Sevtor, a direct descendant of Liaerto I and head of House Orana, personally traveled to Aicruae during Year Five of the civil war with Duke Reasaec Kivier of Equateiy. Sevtor's purpose was twofold: to support Orcus and to avenge Iris, who had been betrothed to his second son Cequailian.

Sevtor launched a devastating magical attack on Valea, killing 15,000 people. It was the single most destructive use of magic in the civil war era and demonstrated what organized, well-resourced magic users could accomplish when deployed as military weapons.

Destruction of House Orana

After the Valea attack, Solis, Jaifey Yuera, and Mihel Kulio kidnapped Maeret Orana, Sevtor's third son. Despite Maeret's repeated pleas for mercy, explaining he had no control over his father's actions, Solis permitted experiments on him. They discovered that fire is deadly to magic users because their bodies, which rely on cold, cannot handle high temperatures. This weakness is specific to magic users of Verna's bloodline, whose magic is tied to Vikitsv's freezing climate atop Mount Aicren.

Solis used this discovery to destroy House Orana. He sent a spy to infiltrate their castle, pour Liacaion into their chambers, and set the fire. All members of House Orana burned to death. The screams echoed throughout Aicruae that night. Only Mekean Orana escaped by dyeing her hair and settling in Equateiy, continuing the family line that eventually leads to Merigen Bleelack.

The destruction of House Orana effectively decapitated the Magic Tower's leadership and triggered Solis's broader persecution of magic users across the empire. Vikitsv's open opposition led to forcible integration, and imperial armies eventually purged Vikitsv's nationalist core.

Notable Members

Listed chronologically by known dates. Members without dates are listed by their appearance in the narrative timeline.

Grand Sorcerer Sevtor ([TBD] - 7,217 BR)

Grand Sorcerer of the Magic Tower | Head of House Orana

Direct descendant of Verna's eldest son Liaerto I, making him part of the purest and most powerful magic bloodline in existence. Sevtor led the Magic Tower and ruled Vikitsv. During Year Five of the Aicruan Civil War, he traveled to Aicruae with Duke Reasaec Kivier of Equateiy to personally support Orcus and avenge Iris, who was betrothed to his second son Cequailian. He launched a magical attack on Valea that killed 15,000 people, the most devastating single act of the war. Solis retaliated by having Liacaion poured into House Orana's chambers and setting them ablaze. Sevtor burned alive with nearly all of his house.

Cequailian Orana

Second Son of Grand Sorcerer Sevtor

Betrothed to Princess Iris Aleka Patton. [Further details TBD]

Maeret Orana ([TBD] - 7,217 BR)

Third Son of Grand Sorcerer Sevtor

After Sevtor's devastating attack on Valea, Solis's forces kidnapped Maeret and experimented on him to discover the weakness of magic users. Despite his repeated pleas for mercy and insistence that he had no control over his father's actions, Solis ignored him and permitted further experiments. They discovered that fire is deadly to magic users because their cold-dependent bodies cannot handle high temperatures. Maeret was killed along with most of House Orana when Solis had their chambers set ablaze.

Mekean Orana

Sole Survivor of House Orana's Destruction

When Solis had her entire family burned alive in their chambers, Mekean escaped by dyeing her hair and settling in Equateiy. She continued the Orana bloodline in exile. Her descendants eventually include Merigen Bleelack, who becomes significant in later eras.

Strengths & Weaknesses

Known For

The most powerful magical bloodline in existence (direct Verna descent through Liaerto I), command of the Magic Tower, monopoly on magical exports that makes Vikitsv the second most influential country globally, geographic near-impregnability (Mount Aicren's three-month journey and freezing climate), exclusive knowledge of Ilkai's existence.

What They Lack

[TBD]

Vulnerabilities

Fire. Magic users of Verna's bloodline rely on cold, and their bodies cannot handle high temperatures. This weakness, discovered through Solis's experiments on Maeret Orana, was ultimately used to destroy the entire house. Their geographic isolation, while protective, also means limited agricultural resources and heavy reliance on food imports.

Role in Narrative

Book Appearances: Book 1 (A Tale of a Thousand Songs), primarily through Grand Sorcerer Sevtor's involvement in the civil war (Chapters 55-57).

Plot Significance: House Orana's entry into the Aicruan Civil War marks the point where the conflict escalates from a domestic succession dispute to an international crisis. Sevtor's attack on Valea is the single most destructive act of the war, and Solis's retaliation against House Orana (burning them alive, experimenting on Maeret) marks his transformation from justified avenger to war criminal. Mekean Orana's survival in exile ensures the bloodline's continuation into later eras through Merigen Bleelack.

Key Members in Story: Grand Sorcerer Sevtor (minor antagonist), Cequailian Orana (betrothed to Iris), Maeret Orana (victim of Solis's experiments), Mekean Orana (survivor, ancestor of Merigen Bleelack).
