Why They Matter

House Reidskelisia is a maritime house, and fittingly, their most significant member came from the sea itself. Ala Reidskelisia was born at sea to a pirate captain and spent her childhood training to inherit her mother's command. But when the pirate group docked in the Caprlolan Kingdom, Ala walked off the ship and into the forest, choosing freedom over legacy. She lived as a hunter, was taken in by Danik Malrancis as a father figure, and eventually joined Crandona's rebellion. During the final battle, Ala killed Avromvog Stanyad with her arrows, avenging Danik's death in one of the rebellion's most personal confrontations.

Heraldry

Crest: A striking blue sea horse or hippocampus in a rampant pose, rearing up with its curled tail and webbed fins visible, positioned centrally against a divided shield featuring a blue wavy base (representing water), a white or silver middle section with crenellations (suggesting castle battlements), and a gray upper section, also crenellated. The mythical creature is rendered in bright blue with darker detailing and a distinctive mane flowing backward, appearing to be emerging from or swimming through the waves below.

Symbolism: The sea horse, a legendary creature of the oceans and symbol of the sea's treasures, represents maritime commerce, the boundless riches found in trade and shipping, and the mystical allure of wealth that seems to flow as endlessly as the tides. The castle elements suggest fortified harbors and the defensive structures that protect and enable this oceanic prosperity.

Motto: "Our Wealth Knows No Limits."

Ala Reidskelisia (Born 24 BR)

Pirate's Daughter, Rebel Archer

Born at sea to a group of pirates. Her mother was the captain and leader. Ala was never close to her mother, knowing her only as a leader and commander. She spent her entire childhood training and fighting in preparation for becoming her mother's heir.

When the pirate group docked in the Caprlolan Kingdom, Ala left the ship and took to the forest, choosing freedom over her mother's legacy. She lived as a hunter, met Hicksora Connorrita in the forest, and both were taken in by Danik Malrancis as a father figure.

She later joined Crandona's rebellion. During the final battle, Ala killed Avromvog Stanyad with her arrows. She survived the rebellion and became a couple with Hicksora.
