

Magic System

MAGIC'S ORIGIN

Magic was not always a thing; there used to be a time when no one could match the power of saints and gods. That was until the Grand Mage Verna made a contract with Iswan, Goddess of Alchemy. Verna became obsessed with power and received a wish from Iswan herself. He wished to have the power to create spells. Since the gods could not deny him his wish because of the oath of Memiet (an oath that says that if a god does not grant the wish of their follower after receiving their soul, the god in question shall cease to exist), he was allowed his wish.

Verna had twenty-seven sons. He made those sons marry their fifteen sisters, and the children born of those unions spread the ability to use magic for multiple generations. However, this power was kept within Vikistv (the nation Verna founded in 7,945 BR) until the age of Solis's conquest.

When a magic user has a child with a non-magic user, the magic itself is like a virus that infects the host (the child). Those closer to the source—a pure and more direct line to Verna—have more amplified magical abilities than those who don't. A child between two magic users will always be more powerful than a child between a magic user and a non-magic user.

It wasn't until well into the rule of Emperor Goteivati Zivc III, after the Reconstruction period of the empire, that magic users began to marry Sun-Forged (normal humans with no origin tied to the gods) and fully integrate into society. Through the course of over two millennia, magic users began to mix their pure magical blood with the Sun-Forged, seemingly eradicating the existence of the People of the Mountain and the People of the Sky with the exception of a few families like those of Professors Siroa and Lyanami Taten.

THE BLOOD TRIALS

Before the Great Mage Takar's discovery in 1528 AR, a child's magical abilities were believed to directly inherit from their parents. Children who did not possess a parent's magical attributes were thought to have been bastards. The consequence of a child not displaying one of the parents' attributes usually fell on the mother and child. Both parties were punished in what is referred to as a Blood Trial.

The outcome of these trials was usually the same: the child and mother were either burned or drowned. In cases where the mother was of nobility or high standing, the child was simply killed, and the mother was branded with the acronym B.W. (Blood Whore), signaling that she had committed an affair.

These trials went on for over two hundred years. An estimated 400,000 women and 600,000 children were killed (or that's what was recorded; countless more would have been undocumented killings).

The Great Mage Takar's discovery ended the Blood Trials by proving that a child's magical abilities have no correlation to those of their parents, meaning that two parents who fall under the Utayer magical division could produce a child who possesses abilities belonging to the Kari magical division. The same applies to a child's magical level: the likelihood of a child inheriting a parent's magical level is only around 40%. No amount of selective breeding can guarantee a child's magical lineage.

THE THREE STAGES OF MAGIC

Makito (Basic) In this stage, a person's magic takes the form of the color purple. It is the weakest of the three stages and requires approximately 45% of the caster's magical output.

Abilities at this level are limited: small fires about the size of a fist, a gentle brush of wind. The magic used in this stage is not very strong and can easily be deflected.

Of the total magic users in the empire (80% of the entire population, roughly 344 million people), 60% fall in the Makito level-approximately 206.4 million people who can't even start a decent fire without meeting their magical output limit.

Rusti (Intermediate) In this stage, a person's magic takes the form of the color red. This is the middle ground of the three levels and requires approximately 69% of the caster's total magical output.

Magical users at the Rusti level usually fall within the Gnati and Minarei magical divisions. This is the highest and most attainable level for most magic users. This stage is called the buffer stage because it sets you far apart from those in the Makito level.

Of the total magic users in the empire, 40% (roughly 138 million) fall within the Rusti level across all six countries.

Javehet (Advanced) In this stage, a person's magic takes the form of the color black. This requires approximately 80% of the caster's total magical output. This is the highest stage a magic user can reach.

This level is sometimes referred to as dark magic because the power is said to be world-ending. At this level, a magic user supposedly makes a deal with a god, who in return gets a portion of their soul to use as a vessel.

The only Javehet-ranked magic user to ever exist was Verna himself, who existed more than twenty thousand years ago. Verna created spells of death and destruction and almost brought an end to the entire world. Thousands upon thousands of people died during this time. He created mountains made up of nothing and cut apart entire seas sometimes by saying just one word or simply waving his hand.

This rank of spellcasting is considered taboo because it rivals the power of saints. There are no Javehet magic users in the entire world, and none since Verna.

DETERMINING YOUR MAGIC LEVEL

The procedure for determining your magical level is simple and comprises only three steps:

1. The magic user's eyes are covered with a blindfold. (This is done for two reasons: so the magic user can connect with their magical abilities, and so they won't be as focused on the pain.)
2. A tip of the magic user's finger is cut. (Your magic is stored within your body and the easiest way to release it so that we can determine your capabilities is to briefly wound the user.)
3. The blood taken from the wound is thrown into an open pit of fire. (The fire will change color depending on your level of magical abilities; it will either be purple, red, or maybe black.)

ADDITIONAL MAGIC MECHANICS

Elemental Branches: Magic is broken into elemental branches (fire, water, earth, air, light, dark).

Sacrifice Requirements:

- Sacrifices to magic must be objects of personal value
- For mild magic: the blood from the caster must be fresh, approximately 2/10 drops of blood or a teaspoon amount
- For hard magic: relinquishing reincarnation is a permanent pact; once the soul is corrupted upon death, it starts to despair

Consequences of Overuse:

- Overuse ages the caster
- Causes madness
- Could attract demonic attention

Modern users avoid Javehet-level spells because it's seen as taboo for these reasons and is virtually unattainable.

MAGIC VS SAINTLY POWER SECTION:

- Magic: Mortal power from Iswan's bargain with Verna. Corrupted divine essence passed through bloodlines for thousands of years. Clear limits (output capacity), causes exhaustion → pain → burnout → permanent damage. Inherited, trainable, bounded by mortal constraints.
- Saintly Power: Direct loan from a god. Saint is vessel, not generator. Can accomplish impossible feats because they direct divine energy. No upper limit except god's willingness.
- Cost of saintly power: Dependency. Power ends completely when god withdraws favor or saint dies. Cannot pass to descendants. Connection can be severed.

- Key distinction: Magic has ceiling but is reliable/heritable; saintly power is unlimited but contingent/temporary.

GIFTED OBJECTS SECTION:

- Created by House Arvento in partnership with Vikistv mages
- Requires three components: skilled craftsman (mundane creation), magic user who “bleeds” power into object, rare materials (metals/crystals from Vikistv)
- Magic user suffers output cost during creation
- Object becomes a “battery” anyone can use regardless of magical ability
- Not alive or intelligent-holds specific enchantment, discharges when activated
- Most become mundane when depleted; some can be recharged
- High prices reflect: magic user’s exhaustion/recovery, rare materials, skilled craftsmanship

OUTPUT LIMITS SECTION:

- Progression: Exhaustion → Pain (burning blood, pressure behind eyes) → Burnout (temporary loss, days to weeks) → Permanent damage (chronic pain, inability to use magic, accelerated aging, madness)
- Experienced practitioners sense limits through training
- Magic color indicates strain: Purple = normal, Red = pushing limits, Black = Javehet-level transcendence (divine bargain)
- Overuse can attract demonic attention-energy signature registers in mental realm

GRAND SORCERER SEVTOR’S ATTACK ON VALEA (7,217 BR)

1

Significance for Magic System:

- This is the most destructive single use of magic in the civil war era

- Sevtor was the head of the Magic Tower in Vikistv and a direct descendant of Verna's eldest son, Liaerto I — making House Orana the most powerful pure-blood magic line in existence
- The attack's scale (15,000 dead) demonstrates what organized, well-resourced magic users can accomplish when deployed as military weapons
- The Valea attack rewrites military doctrine: fixed "showpiece" strongholds become politically toxic and militarily suspect after this demonstration

DISCOVERY: FIRE AS MAGIC USER WEAKNESS

Event: After the Valea attack, Solis, Jaifey Yuera, and Mihel Kulio kidnapped Maeret Orana (Sevtor's third son) and experimented on him to discover magic users' vulnerability.

Discovery: Fire is deadly to magic users because their bodies - which rely on cold - cannot handle high temperatures. This weakness is specific to magic users of Verna's bloodline, whose magic is tied to the cold climate of Vikistv (which sits atop Mount Aicren, the coldest location in the world).

Application: Solis used this discovery to destroy House Orana. He had a spy infiltrate their castle and pour Liacaion (the world's equivalent of gasoline) into their chambers. The spy lit the fire, and all members of House Orana burned to death - except Mekean, who escaped by dyeing her hair and settling in Equateiy, continuing the family line that eventually leads to Merigen Bleelack.

Chapter References: Ch. 56 (The Wrath of the Great Ones), Ch. 57 (The Lost One)

Cross-references:

- LIACAION (Key Words and Terms)
- HOUSE ORANA (Noble Houses)
- GRAND SORCERER SEVTOR (In Story Characters / Historical Figures)
- MAERET ORANA (In Story Characters)
- VIKISTV / THE MAGIC TOWER (Locations)

THE ILKAI HERB

Classification: Divine-level substance (not standard magic)

Properties: Capable of killing a god

Source: Obtained by Harnua Kulio through a deal with the goddess Nellebrie (7,214 BR)

Usage in Story: Harnua mixed Ilkai into a cup of wine intended for Solis during a celebration. Because Solis was under the protection of Razar, Nellebrie's divine power was necessary to bypass Razar's shield. Empress Esterica accidentally drank from the cup and died instantly.

Relationship to Magic System: Ilkai exists outside the standard Makito/Rusti/Javehet magic level system. It is a substance of divine origin, not a spell or magical technique. Its existence demonstrates that the divine and magical systems, while related through Verna and Iswan's contract, operate on different levels of power.

Cross-references:

- ILKAI (Key Words and Terms)
- HARNUA KULIO (In Story Characters / Religion — Saints)
- NELLEBRIE (Religion - God Personalities)

SOLIS'S PURGE OF MAGIC USERS (post-7,214 BR)

2The purge's root cause was Solis's grief and fear after Harnua - a saint with divine power - killed his wife. However, it conflated divine saintly power (Harnua's gift from Nellebrie) with standard magical ability (Verna's bloodline inheritance), persecuting all magic users regardless of their actual threat level.

Cross-references:

- SOLIS ELIAS PATTON (In Story Characters)
- HARNUA KULIO (In Story Characters)
- VIKISTV (Locations)
- HOUSE ORANA (Noble Houses)

The Pertari Stairs

The Pertari Stairs are not a place. They are a condition-what happens to a soul that has become too discordant to rejoin Noirta's song. A healthy soul, when its body dies, naturally flows back into the cycle. Death is a pause, and then the Song picks them up again, carrying them toward rebirth. But a corrupted soul has changed its fundamental frequency. It tries to return to the Song, but the Song cannot accept it. The soul reaches for the cycle and finds only climbing.

The Stairs are the experience of eternally almost-returning. The corrupted soul feels the pull of Noirta above them, hears echoes of the Song they once belonged to, and climbs toward it. Forever. They never arrive. They never rest. They exist in the space between what they were and what they can no longer be.

The torment is both physical and psychological, inseparable from each other. The climbing never stops. The soul has a body on the Stairs-not their living body, but a memory of one, aching and heavy. Their legs burn. Their lungs seize. They stumble and fall and rise again because there is no alternative. The Stairs are endless in both directions; there is no going back, no sitting down, no relief. Rest is something that belongs to souls still welcome in the Song.

But the worse suffering is what they hear. Above them, always above them, Noirta plays. The corrupted soul can hear the Song they were once part of. They hear other souls cycling through-souls that lived and died and will live again.

Sometimes they recognize voices. A mother. A child. A lover from three lifetimes ago. These souls pass through the Song like water through a river, effortless and eternal, while the corrupted one climbs toward a reunion that will never come.

The Pertari Stairs predate the gods. They existed before Mikani crystallized from Noirta, before Haxenylian emerged to protect what had been created. The Stairs are not divine architecture. They are simply what happens when a soul falls out of harmony with existence itself. No divine power has ever retrieved a soul from them.

Paths to Corruption

Corruption is not about sin in the way temple priests sometimes teach it. A soul can lie, steal, murder, and still return to Noirta when the body dies. The Song does not judge morality—it judges harmony. A soul becomes corrupted when it changes so fundamentally that it no longer resonates with what it once was. When the note it sings becomes unrecognizable to the greater melody. There are four known paths:

Wrath Unchecked - The oldest path. The first corrupted soul did not simply kill—killing is part of mortal existence, and the Song accounts for it. The first corrupted soul became killing. They shed so much blood, with such sustained fury, that violence stopped being something they did and became something they were. Their soul rewrote itself around destruction until nothing else remained. This is why soldiers who kill in war do not automatically corrupt. Intent matters. Context matters. But a soul that surrenders entirely to wrath, that lets rage become their only truth across years or even lifetimes—that soul hollows itself out and fills the space with something the Song cannot hold.

The Ilkai Herb - Corruption from outside rather than within. Where wrath reshapes the soul through choice, Ilkai simply breaks it. The herb grows where disaster and transformation overlap on Mount Aicren, and it carries that contradiction into whoever consumes it. The soul does not change—it shatters. The pieces try to return to Noirta separately, and none of them are whole enough to rejoin. It is called “god-killing” not because gods have literally died from it, but because it does what even the gods cannot: it ends a soul permanently.

Magical Corruption (Javehet-Level Debt) - Most magic—even powerful magic—does not threaten the soul. The danger is debt. At the highest levels of magical practice, a caster can reach beyond what their own power allows. They can borrow from the world, from other souls, from forces that exist in the spaces between things. This is where Javehet-level magic lives—in the territory of bargains. Some payments are simple: years of life, memories, the ability to taste food or feel warmth. These transactions leave the soul intact, if diminished. But some sorcerers trade pieces of themselves—not memories or sensations, but fundamental notes of their soul’s song. Each trade changes what they are. Each bargain rewrites them. If they trade too much, if they hollow themselves out in pursuit of power, they cross a threshold they cannot return from. The Magic Tower of Vikistv knows this. It is why their training is so brutal, why they turn away more students than they accept. They are not simply teaching technique. They are teaching restraint—how to touch the Javehet level without being consumed by it.

Souls That Refuse the Song - The rarest and the saddest path. Some souls, after many lifetimes, grow weary. They remember too much. The weight of accumulated lives becomes unbearable—lovers lost and found and lost again, children buried across centuries, the same mistakes made in different bodies. These souls do not want to continue. But Noirta does not offer an exit. The Song plays eternally, and souls are part of it whether they wish to be or not. So some desperate souls try to force an ending. They seek out corruption deliberately—pursuing wrath they do not feel, or searching for Ilkai on the frozen slopes of Mount Aicren, or making magical bargains they know will destroy them. They choose the Pertari Stairs because endless climbing feels less terrible than endless becoming.

The Ilkai Herb (Expanded)

The Ilkai herb grows only on Mount Aicren, in specific conditions where Nellebrie's disaster-creation and Iswan's alchemical influence overlap. This connects it directly to Iswan's domain, since Vikitsv worships her as their supreme god and the mountain itself was created by Nellebrie. The herb exists in the overlap between disaster and alchemy, destruction and transformation.

Vekta and Aryanara, the great scholars who taught about the cycle of rebirth, discovered Ilkai during their studies. They were the first to document that it breaks the soul's cycle permanently. The herb is extraordinarily rare because most who attempt the three-month journey up the mountain die before reaching it. House Orana and the Magic Tower likely know of its existence but guard this knowledge carefully. Within Vikitsv's scholarly circles, even there it is considered forbidden—using Ilkai is seen as worse than murder because you are not just ending a life, you are ending a soul's eternal existence.

Nellebrie, as the goddess who embodies destruction-as-renewal, told Harnua Kulio where the Ilkai grows. The goddess of disaster understands endings. She knows that some doors, once opened, cannot be closed.

DASERI

[Fire Magic]

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name: Daseri

Also Known As: Fire Magic

Category: Elemental (subset of Utayer tradition)

ORIGINS

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to Verna, manifesting as an affinity for heat and flame.

Daseri is classified as a specialized branch within the broader elemental tradition.

Historical Development:

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy) — as the source of all mortal magic through the Verna contract.

HOW IT WORKS

-

Mechanism:

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Daseri affinity; divisions are innate at birth, determined by bloodline and how Iswan's gift manifests in each individual.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines originating from Verna's descendants.

Training Required: Training sharpens control and increases efficiency but cannot change a person's fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities: Small fires about the size of a fist.

Limitations: Easily deflected; requires $\sim 45\%$ magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 69\%$ magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 80\%$ magical output; considered taboo.

% of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, caster supposedly makes a deal with a god who receives a portion of their soul.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, attracting demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception:

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This: Karniode Vesmen (Special Division,

Code Name: Nairan)

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance: Karniode serves as a Frontline Defender in the Special Division, using Daseri combat magic on the front lines against demons.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

-

Division Symbol — Graphic: Four charcoal gray tendrils of flame, each starting from a rounded base and tapering into irregular, flickering tips that curl sinuously upward. Impression: The dynamic curves and uneven edges convincingly evoke dancing fire tongues; it's a bold, unmistakable symbol of heat and destruction.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

☐

FAKU [Alchemist Magic]

_____ CLASSIFICATION

-

Division Name: Faku

Also Known As: Alchemist Magic

Category: Alchemical / Creation

ORIGINS

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to

Verna, manifesting as an affinity for combining and transmuting natural materials.

Historical Development:

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy) - Faku magic bears the closest functional resemblance to Iswan's own domain of alchemy and transformation.

HOW IT WORKS

Mechanism:

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

-

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Faku affinity; divisions are innate at birth.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines.

Training Required: Training sharpens control but cannot change fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 45% magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 69% magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 80% magical output; taboo.

% of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception:

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This: Silaena Chairameron (Special Division, Code Name: Galamma - Weapon Crafter/Gear Maker)

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance: Silaena uses Faku magic in her role as the Special Division's Weapon Crafter and Gear Maker, designing and building weapons, armor, and specialized equipment. She rigs explosives to collapse choke points during the final battle. Silaena dies heroically in the climactic fight.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

-

Division Symbol - Graphic: A loose cluster of botanical elements - three simple leaves, two slender twig-like branches, and three small circles suggesting alchemical reagents - scattered around a tiny central dot.

Impression: It reads as an experimental, organic collage, perfectly capturing the sense of combining natural ingredients in unpredictable ways.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

□

HALIVER

[Water Magic]

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name: Haliver

Also Known As: Water Magic

Category: Elemental (subset of Utayer tradition)

ORIGINS

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to Verna, manifesting as an affinity for water and fluid manipulation.

Historical Development:

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy).

HOW IT WORKS

-

Mechanism:

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Haliver affinity; divisions are innate at birth.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines.

Training Required: Training sharpens control but cannot change fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 45% magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 69% magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 80% magical output; taboo.

% of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

-

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception:

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This:

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance:

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

Division Symbol - Graphic: Five parallel, undulating horizontal lines of varying thickness; the top and third lines curl into soft spiral tips, like gentle waves folding over themselves.

Impression: Calm and rhythmic, it evokes the ebb and flow of water with elegant simplicity.

Taught at the Solisian Academy. No named Crown of Glory characters currently identified as Haliver users.

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name: Utayer

Also Known As: Earth Magic

Category: Elemental

ORIGINS

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to

Verna, manifesting as elemental manipulation of the physical world.

Historical Development: Utayer is the most common magical division, and the broadest in scope.

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy).

HOW IT WORKS

-

Mechanism: Encompasses elemental manipulation of fire, water, earth, and air.

Utayer mages are versatile generalists capable of affecting the physical world directly.

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

-

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Utayer affinity; the most commonly occurring division.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines.

Training Required: Training sharpens control but cannot change fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities: Small fires, gentle brush of wind, minor earth/water manipulation.

Limitations: Requires $\sim 45\%$ magical output; easily deflected.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 69\%$ magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 80\%$ magical output; taboo.

% of Users: None currently known (Verna was the only Javehet-level user in history).

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception: Most widely accepted division due to its prevalence and practical applications.

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

-

Notable Historical Users: Grand Sorcerer Sevtor of House

Orana - launched the devastating attack on Valea that killed 15,000 people during the Civil War.

Characters Who Use This:

Famous Incidents: The Attack on Valea (7,217 BR).

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

–

Plot Relevance: Most military applications of magic involve Utayer practitioners. The division's prevalence makes it the default expectation for magic users in the empire.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

Division Symbol - Graphic: A vertical arrangement of a single slender stem bearing six simple, pointed leaves and surrounded by four tiny dots.

Impression: The upward-growing twig symbolizes rooted growth and stability.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

NOTE ON CLASSIFICATION: The CANON doc describes Utayer as encompassing “elemental manipulation of fire, water, earth, and air,” while the Academy also lists Daseri (Fire) and Haliver (Water) as separate divisions. This may indicate that Daseri and Haliver are specialized sub-branches of the broader Utayer tradition, or that the Academy teaches them as distinct disciplines for pedagogical purposes. Clarify whether Daseri/Haliver practitioners are considered Utayer users with specializations, or truly separate divisions.

_____ KARI [Wind Magic]

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name: Kari

Also Known As: Wind Magic / Enhancement Magic / Body Magic

Category: Enhancement / Physical

ORIGINS

•

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to Verna, manifesting as an affinity for enhancement and physical augmentation.

Historical Development:

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy).

HOW IT WORKS

-

Mechanism: Kari focuses on enhancement and body magic.

Practitioners can strengthen themselves or others, accelerate healing, and push physical capabilities beyond normal limits.

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Kari affinity; divisions are innate at birth.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines.

Training Required: Training sharpens control but cannot change fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

-

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 45\%$ magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 69\%$ magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 80\%$ magical output; taboo.

% of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

—

Social Perception: Valued for support applications in both combat and medical contexts.

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This: Former Special Division members

Code Name K1 (Secondline Manager) and Code Name K2 (Leader) both had Kari affinities.

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance: The former Special Division team's Leader and Secondline Manager were both Kari users, suggesting the division's support/enhancement abilities are highly valued in tactical leadership roles.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

—

-

Division Symbol - Graphic: Two curling spirals at left and right, connected by four staggered, short horizontal strokes, all implying swift lateral motion.

Impression: The combination of curls and dashes conveys a sense of invisible currents and brisk gusts.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

NOTE ON NAMING: The Academy lists Kari as "Wind Magic," but the CANON doc's functional description focuses on enhancement and body magic rather than wind manipulation. The "Wind" label may be metaphorical (the invisible force that strengthens), or Kari may encompass both wind manipulation and physical enhancement. Clarify whether "Wind Magic" is literal or figurative. ==

AROLIM

[Holy / Healing Magic]

CLASSIFICATION

LL

—

Division Name: Arolim

Also Known As: Holy Magic / Healing Magic

Category: Creation / Alchemy

ORIGINS

———

—

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to Verna, manifesting as an affinity for creation and transmutation - the closest mortal magic comes to divine creation.

Historical Development: The rarest of all divisions.

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy) — Arolim practitioners work effects that overlap with Iswan's own domain, which is why this division is viewed with suspicion.

HOW IT WORKS

———

—
Mechanism: Arolim deals with creation and alchemy.

Practitioners can transmute materials, create objects through magical means, and work effects that come closest to divine creation rather than merely manipulating what already exists.

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Arolim affinity; the rarest naturally occurring division.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines.

Training Required: Training sharpens control but cannot change fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 45% magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 69% magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 80% magical output; taboo.

% of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception: Viewed with suspicion because it comes closest to divine creation - people are uneasy with mortals wielding power that resembles a god's domain.

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

-

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This: Elleraian Betenadia Patton

(Special Division, Code Name: Aliirusk — Healer/

Secondline Defender). Former Special Division member

Code Name A also had an Arolim affinity (Frontline Manager).

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance: Elleraian uses Arolim magic primarily as the team's Healer, with secondary Defender duties. The Crown Prince possessing the rarest magical division adds another layer to his significance - and another reason Empress Macenja views him as both useful and threatening. His Arolim abilities make him essential to the team's survival during extended missions.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

Division Symbol - Graphic: Nineteen small star-shaped sparkles and diamond-shaped dots, clustered in a roughly triangular field, with varying sizes to suggest a radiant aura.

Impression: It shines with benevolence and purity, like healing light scattering in all directions.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

NOTE ON NAMING: The Academy labels this "Holy / Healing Magic," while the CANON doc describes it as "creation and alchemy." The healing applications may be the most publicly known use, while the transmutation and creation aspects are what make it feared. Elleraian's role as Healer aligns with the "Holy/Healing" label, but the division's full potential extends far beyond that.

□

MINAREI [Control / Puppetry Magic]

□

CLASSIFICATION

-

Division Name: Minarei

Also Known As: Control Magic / Puppetry Magic

Category: Illusion / Perception

ORIGINS

-

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to Verna, manifesting as an affinity for illusion and manipulation of perception.

Historical Development:

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy).

HOW IT WORKS

-

Mechanism: Minarei encompasses illusion and perception magic. Practitioners create false images, manipulate what others see and hear, and work with subtle effects rather than direct force. Requires finesse and mental discipline, making it difficult to master but valuable for espionage and misdirection.

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Minarei affinity; divisions are innate at birth.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines.

Training Required: Requires exceptional mental discipline to master. Training sharpens control but cannot change fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 45% magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 69% magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abstract

Abilities: Limitations: Requires ~ 80% magical output; taboo. % of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

-

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

-

Social Perception: Valued for espionage and misdirection but likely viewed with wariness due to the inherently deceptive nature of the magic.

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

-

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This: Isaeri Ashonve (Special Division, Code Name: Dorthargel — Frontline Defender)

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance: Isaeri operates as a Frontline Defender despite Minarei being a subtlety-based division - this suggests she's found ways to weaponize illusion and perception manipulation in direct combat, which is an interesting subversion of the division's typical espionage applications.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

-

Division Symbol - Graphic: A tightly wound skein of yarn, overlaid by two knitting needles crossed in an "X."

Impression: The interlaced threads and needles imply skillful manipulation - perfect for puppetry or control.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

□

YEOHET

[Light Magic]

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name: Yeohet

Also Known As: Light Magic

Category: Radiant / Illumination

ORIGINS

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to Verna, manifesting as an affinity for light and radiance.

Historical Development:

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy).

HOW IT WORKS

Mechanism:

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Yeohet affinity; divisions are innate at birth.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines.

Training Required: Training sharpens control but cannot change fundamental division.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 45\%$ magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 69\%$ magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires $\sim 80\%$ magical output; taboo.

% of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

-

Social Perception:

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

-

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This: Vasert Prairn (Special Division, Code Name: Reron — Secondline Defender)

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance: Vasert uses Yeohet magic as a Secondline

Defender, likely providing illumination-based support, barriers, or ranged light attacks from behind the front line. He coordinates flanking maneuvers with Nivaeran during the final battle.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

—
-

Division Symbol — Graphic: A semicircle rising from a gently wavy line, with thirty-two slender rays radiating upward; below, two parallel undulations echo water beneath the sun.

Impression: It reads as a sunrise or sunset over water symbolizing illumination and hope.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

□

PAOSU
[Non-Magical]

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name: Paosu

Also Known As: Non-Magical Division

Category: Non-Magical

ORIGINS

Source of Power: N/A - Paosu designates individuals who possess no magical ability whatsoever. The division exists within the Academy structure to ensure nonmagical students receive equivalent education and are not excluded from the institution.

Historical Development: Created as part of the Solisian Academy's framework to accommodate all students of noble standing, regardless of magical aptitude.

Connection to Gods: None directly. Paosu individuals are descendants of bloodlines where Iswan's gift either never manifested or has been diluted beyond expression.

Magic has roughly a 40% inheritance chance, meaning the majority of the population - including many nobles - are non-magical.

HOW IT WORKS

—

Mechanism: N/A - No magical mechanism. Paosu students focus on non-magical disciplines: governance, commerce, military strategy, diplomacy, and physical combat.

Requirements to Use: N/A

How It Manifests: N/A

Casting Process: N/A

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: N/A — Paosu is the default state for those born without magical ability.

How It's Acquired: Born without magic.

Training Required: N/A for magic. Paosu students train in non-magical disciplines.

Age of Manifestation: N/A

LEVELS OF MASTERY

N/A - No magical levels apply to Paosu.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

N/A - No magical costs. Paosu individuals face the limitation of having no magical ability in a society where magic confers significant advantages.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception: Likely varies - non-magical nobles may face subtle stigma in a society that values magical ability, particularly among military and political circles where magic provides tactical advantages.

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

-

Notable Historical Users: N/A

Characters Who Use This: N/A - No named Crown of Glory characters are identified as Paosu.

Famous Incidents: N/A

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

Combinations: N/A

Conflicts: N/A

Nullification: N/A

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

—

Plot Relevance: The existence of Paosu as a formal division reinforces the Academy's Rule #2 - "All Students are Equal Regardless of Standing" - extending that equality to magical standing as well as social rank. The 60% non-inheritance rate means most people are Paosu, making this the silent majority of the Empire.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

—

-

Division Symbol — Graphic: A finely drawn, high-spire

Temple - complete with arched windows, buttresses, and a spherical finial at its peak.

Impression: This architectural sketch suggests solidity, tradition, and mundanity in contrast to magical iconography.

Taught at the Solisian Academy as a recognized division alongside the nine magical divisions.

GNATI

[Uncontrolled Magic]

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name: Gnati

Also Known As: Uncontrolled Magic / Raw Magic

Category: Uncontrolled / Wild

ORIGINS

Source of Power: Derived from Iswan's original gift to

Verna, but manifesting in a raw, undirected form that resists categorization into any other division.

Historical Development: Gnati is rare and feared throughout the Empire's history. Those identified with this division require extensive training to avoid becoming threats to everyone around them.

Connection to Gods: Iswan (Goddess of Alchemy) — Gnati may represent the purest and most undiluted form of Iswan's original gift, which is precisely why it's so dangerous: the power hasn't been refined through generations of specialization into a manageable form.

HOW IT WORKS

—
-

Mechanism: Gnati practitioners possess tremendous power but struggle to direct it precisely. Their magic is unstable and dangerous, as likely to harm the caster as the intended target. The magic is raw and uncontrolled — it doesn't fit neatly into elemental, enhancement, illusion, or any other category.

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

Who Can Learn It: Those born with the Gnati affinity; extremely rare occurrence.

How It's Acquired: Inherited through magical bloodlines, though the conditions that produce Gnati rather than a standard division are unclear. Possessing multiple affinities is rare but possible, typically indicating mixed magical heritage from both People of the Mountain and People of the Sky ancestry — such individuals are powerful but often unstable, their competing affinities creating internal conflict.

Training Required: Extensive training required simply to avoid becoming a danger to self and others, let alone to harness the power usefully.

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 45% magical output.

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 69% magical output.

% of Users:

Javehet (Advanced):

Abilities:

Limitations: Requires ~ 80% magical output; taboo.

% of Users: None currently known.

COSTS & LIMITATIONS

LL

-

Physical Cost: Overuse ages the caster.

Mental Cost: Overuse causes madness.

Spiritual Cost: At Javehet level, soul bargain required.

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do): Gnati users struggle with precision - the power is enormous but directionally unreliable.

Dangers of Overuse: Aging, madness, demonic attention.

Additionally, the inherent instability of Gnati magic means even normal use carries risk of unintended collateral damage.

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception: Feared. Gnati users are seen as dangerous and unpredictable, regardless of the individual's character or intentions.

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This: Minara Gonia (Special Division, Code Name: Bura — Team Leader), Nivaeran Veir (Special Division, Code Name: Argellon — Frontline Manager), Dahnyliein Catern (Special Division, Code Name: Malign - Secondline Manager)

Famous Incidents:

INTERACTION WITH OTHER SYSTEMS

-

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance: Gnati is central to Crown of Glory's narrative. The protagonist (Minara), her love interest (Nivaeran), and her fiancé/friend (Dahnyliein) all share this rare and feared classification, binding them together as outsiders even within the Academy's elite. Minara's Gnati magic also connects to her hidden identity — her tremendous raw power may stem from her royal Patton bloodline and/or her nature as a reincarnation of Soli and Apharia's child. The division metaphorically mirrors Minara's character: powerful, uncontrolled, dangerous, and in need of learning to direct her strength without destroying herself or others.

Minara's ability to communicate with demons may also be connected to her Gnati classification - raw, unfiltered magic potentially bridging the gap between mortal and demonic planes in ways refined divisions cannot.

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing: Three of the eight Special Division members are Gnati - an unusual concentration of the rarest division. Consider whether this is coincidence, deliberate recruitment, or connected to the escalating demon crisis.

NOTES

-

Division Symbol — Graphic: A faint circle — resembling a moon - partially obscured by swirling horizontal streaks and wispy clouds. Impression: The blurry, restless forms evoke chaotic, untamed forces beyond mastery.

Taught at the Solisian Academy.

DEMONS & DEMON CLASSIFICATIONS

Demons are creatures that invade the mortal world through the corrupted world doors and The Gate. Their presence in the mortal realm has increased dramatically during the events of Crown of Glory due to Empress Macenja/Vandrea's machinations and Renedin's influence on the barrier between realms.

THE OFFICIAL RANKING OF DEMONS (Most to Least Powerful)

1. Valoka
2. Namilrane
3. Akotia Jerctika
4. Zelian
5. Lim
6. Vorel
7. Alem
8. Jali
9. Plova

Demons are organized into functional sub-classes based on their role:

Sub Class: Attackers

Namilrane - Horns on both the top and bottom of its face. Human-like hands that act as its feet. It can stand and run very fast. Height: 10 ft . Very violent. Uncommon.

Sub Class: Spirit Demons

Valoka - Spirit demons existing in the dream plane, supposedly under the commission of the old god Renedin. Valokas are purple, have huge tongues, bug-like wings, and large stick-like legs that take up a huge portion of their bodies. They always seem to be smiling. They use their smiles to lure and trap their victims in the dream plane while they take over their bodies. The first sighting of Valokas happened when a man named Dalika Uaer barely managed to survive being possessed by one and composed a drawing of the creature so that others know of their existence. Height: 8 ft . Extremely violent. Rare.

Sub Class: Warriors

Lim —Bird-like creature. Abilities: Mimicking sound, stealing sound. Method of killing: Uses sound to lure its victims in before killing them using the venom it shoots out.

Akotia Jerctika — A field demon/foot soldier. Height: 7 ft (usually). Description: A cross between a moose and deer. It has a bird-like beak and deer antlers, a thick neck, and a large exposed brain. Weakness: Can die from their brain being punctured.

Zelian - Ground Shifter. Size: Usually 20 meters long. Worm-like in shape but with reptile-like skin and tail. Method of hunting: Uses its tail to kill.

Sub Class: Messengers

Vorel - Minor Messenger Demon. Lumpy face, tiny ears protected by the lumpiness of the face, small feet (runs fast despite this).

Jali - General Messenger Demon. Purpose: Relaying information to demons. A giant eye with bird-like wings. Abilities: Teleportation.

Sub Class: Healers

Alem — Greater Healer Demon. Five tiny red balls that are dark red — best described as four tiny red balls circling a giant red ball. Non-violent.

Plova - Lesser Healer Demon. A plant demon that can regenerate certain parts of itself. Non-violent.

Rare. Usually used to make soup for sick people due to its healing properties.

DEMON CLASSIFICATION SYSTEM

Demons are entities from Renedin's mental realm that can manifest in the physical world through corrupted world doors, proximity to strained magic users, or near-death dream states. They are classified by power and function into an official ranking system, from most to least powerful: Valoka's, Namilrane, Akotia Jerctika, Zelian, Lim, Vorel, Alem, Jali, Plova. These nine types fall into six sub-classes.

Attackers

The Attacker sub-class contains the two most dangerous physical demons. Namilrane stand approximately ten feet tall and are extremely violent, functioning as brute-force assault creatures.

Valoka's are the most powerful demons in the hierarchy - eight-foot-tall spirits from the dream plane who serve directly under Renedin. Valoka's are purple in coloration with bug-like wings and possess the unique ability to enter the dream plane and possess victims. Unlike other demons, they have no physical form and exist entirely on the dream plane. They can only be fought by waking up or having someone wake you. The first recorded Valoka sighting was survived by Dalika Uaer, who created a warning drawing after surviving possession.

Field Demons

Akotia Jerctika are the primary field demon. They stand approximately seven feet tall and resemble a moose or deer hybrid. Their exposed brain is their primary weakness.

Ground Shifters

Zelian are massive worm-reptile hybrids measuring approximately twenty meters in length. They operate underground and disrupt terrain.

Warriors

Lim are bird-like warrior demons with the ability to mimic sound. They possess venom, making them dangerous in close combat.

Messengers

The Messenger sub-class includes two types. Vorel are minor messengers used for basic communication between demonic forces. Jali are general-purpose messengers with the additional ability of teleportation.

Healers

The Healer sub-class contains two types. Alem are greater healers that can restore other demons. Plova are lesser healers - plant demons with limited restorative capabilities.

MAGIC OVERUSE AND DEMONIC ATTENTION

Overuse of magic can attract demonic attention. The energy signature of a strained magic user registers in the mental realm, potentially drawing Valoka demons or other entities toward them. This is one of the reasons magic use carries inherent risk even beyond the physical toll on the user's body - pushing past one's limits does not just risk personal harm but can create a beacon that draws the most dangerous creatures in existence.

DEMON COMBAT AND DESTRUCTION

Demons can be destroyed in the physical realm, but they do not truly die in the mortal sense. When a demon's physical form is destroyed, its essence disperses back into Renedin's mental realm. Given enough time and the right conditions - proximity to a corrupted world door, a magic user pushing past their limits, or someone dreaming too close to death - the same demon can reconstitute.

The barrier between realms used to slow this reconstitution to centuries, but since Vandrea's corruption of an unstable world door during A Princess in Love, the process now takes only months or years. This is why demons have become an escalating threat rather than a manageable occasional occurrence.

Valoka's are the exception to standard combat. Because they are dream-plane spirits with no physical form, the only way to fight them is to wake up or have someone else wake you from the dream state they attack through.

Permanent destruction of a demon would theoretically require destroying it within Renedin's realm itself, but this has never been achieved. There is an untested theory that destroying Renedin himself would unravel all demons - or potentially make them worse by removing whatever control he exerts over them.

[MAGIC DIVISION NAME]

CLASSIFICATION

Division Name:

Also Known As:

Category: [Utayer/Kari/Gnati/Arolim/Minarei]

ORIGINS

Source of Power:

Historical Development:

Connection to Gods:

HOW IT WORKS

-

Mechanism:

Requirements to Use:

How It Manifests:

Casting Process:

ACQUISITION

D SII SIII

Who Can Learn It:

How It's Acquired:

Training Required:

Age of Manifestation:

LEVELS OF MASTERY

-

Makito (Basic):

Abilities:

Limitations:

% of Users:

Rusti (Intermediate):

Abilities:
Limitations:
% of Users:
Javehet (Advanced):
 Abilities:
 Limitations:
 % of Users:
COSTS & LIMITATIONS

Physical Cost:

Mental Cost:

Spiritual Cost:

Hard Limits (What It Cannot Do):

Dangers of Overuse:

SOCIETY & REGULATION

Social Perception:

Legal Status:

Governing Bodies:

Restrictions:

PRACTITIONERS

•

Notable Historical Users:

Characters Who Use This:

Famous Incidents:

Combinations:

Conflicts:

Nullification:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Plot Relevance:

Key Scenes:

Rules to Remember When Writing:

NOTES

[CREATURE NAME]

[Classification/Rank]

CLASSIFICATION

Name:

Also Known As:

Type: [Demon/Beast/Spirit/etc.]

Hierarchy Rank: [Valoka/Namilrane/Akotia Jerctika/etc.]

Realm of Origin:

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION

Appearance:

Size:

Distinguishing Features:

Variations (if any):

How to Identify One:

BEHAVIOR & NATURE

Intelligence Level:

Temperament:

Hunting/Feeding Habits:

Social Structure:

Communication:

What Attracts Them:

What Repels Them:

ABILITIES

Primary Powers:

Secondary Abilities:

Special Attacks:

Magical Properties:

Sensory Capabilities:

WEAKNESSES & VULNERABILITIES

Physical Weaknesses:

Magical Weaknesses:

How to Kill/Banish:

What They Fear:

Effective Weapons/Methods:

DANGER LEVEL

-

Threat Rating: [1-10 or descriptive scale]

Typical Victims:

Kill Count (Historical):

Survivability If Encountered:

HABITAT & DISTRIBUTION

Where They're Found:

Environmental Preferences:

Territorial Behavior:

Migration Patterns:

Population Estimates:

ORIGIN & MYTHOLOGY

Creation Story:

Connection to Gods:

Historical Incidents:

Folk Beliefs About Them:

How Different Cultures View Them:

INTERACTION WITH MAGIC

Can They Use Magic:

How Magic Affects Them:

Relationship to Magic Users:

Summoning/Binding Methods:

What Happens When Magic Users Overuse Power:

ROLE IN NARRATIVE

Book Appearances:

Key Scenes:

Characters Who Encounter Them:

Plot Significance:

WRITING NOTES

How to Describe Them:

Sensory Details to Include:

Common Mistakes to Avoid:

Tone When Writing Scenes With Them:

NOTES

-
1. Event: During Civil War Year Five, Grand Sorcerer Sevtor of House Orana (Vikistv) traveled to Aicruae to personally aid Orcus. Sevtor launched a devastating magical attack on Valea — one of Orcus's former strongholds now held by Solis — that resulted in 15,000 deaths.
 2. After Esterica's death, Solis launched an empire-wide persecution of magic users. This purge:
 - Drove magic users into flight from Vikistv and Equateiy
 - Created a magic-user diaspora across the empire

- Established a precedent of state persecution of magical ability that persisted for generations
- Was not resolved until the Reconstruction period under Emperor Goteivati Zivc III, when magic users began to reintegrate into society
- Created conditions for "black-market sorcery" in the interim period