Aliirusk left behind his father, mother and one year old child when he passed. The relationship between Nellebrie and Dorthargel was one of the greatest reminders of god's love for the saints. Unfortunately for him because he ignored his duties he was eventually hunted down by the humans and died after suffering countless blows to his head.

He is nicknamed the " wrong choice." and he is one of the first examples of humans disapproving of who the gods make saints. Nimlye was very fond of him and tried to get the gods to agree to him being buried in the kingdom of the gods but they said that he wasn't worthy. So Nimlye created a mirror and placed his body inside of it she then had Finore refine the mirror so that it could become a necklace and she is said to wear that necklace around her neck at all times.

Eren to most was considered foolish. He wasn't generally a bad person he was just young and not versed in the ways of the world. This is why many believe Nimlye favored him.

One day when she was playing with her toy it flew into the sea she went to get it and nearly drowned. Luckily, she was saved by the goddess Zopha who felt sorry for her. After saving her Zopha gifted her powers allowing her to become a saint. While Siriande life wasn't as long or as short as other saints her death was still tragic. Siriande died at the age of 34 after being poisoned by her son. Many consider that fact to be tragic but the fact that she knew he was trying to poison her and she still accepted the poison is possibly the saddest part of her story. Her son's betrayal is extremely brutal because many historical texts describe her as a wonderful mother and saint. No one can say for sure why her son choose to betray her but many suspect that his reasons for killing her were related to power.

In her final moments, she begged the goddess Zopha to spare her son she believed he was merely corrupted by the will of men. Zopha agreed but took away his ability to speak so that he may never ask for forgiveness. That was the first of two requests Siriande asked of the goddess the last of her two final requests of the goddess was that she may not be buried amongst the gods but amongst men.

Siriande is known for the construction of several dams and the creation of several laws known as the Yerian Laws meant to grant protection for women these laws ranged from material laws to land ownership.

She is nicknamed "Siriande the unlucky" for if she had borne a better son she may have lived longer.

29 YEARS OLD

She had never known hardship and unlike the other saints did not get her gift by being extraordinary or by having a trait that sets her apart from anyone else. She was simply a girl from a wealthy family who happened to be in the right place at the right time. Her carriage had broken down in a forest and while she was roaming the forest to pass the time she stumbled upon a wounded deer. Narian helped the deer who she didn't know was the goddess Allan who had been wounded following an attack by humans.

The goddess Allan who was suspicious of her at first because of her flashy nature grew to like her after she took off her coat and covered her with it.

Allan gifted Nairan the blessing soon after.

Nairan lived a beautiful life and she died surrounded by her three young daughters while it's not exactly ideal to die at the age of 29 she had no choice seeing as she suffered complications birthing her last child.

During her life, she helped create a system to help route out corruption within the appointed government and created a movement for science that helped create and modify medicine.

9.Karniode

9,365 BR - 9,351 BR

14 YEARS OLD

Not much is known about Karniode's life despite her being born during a time where history had begun being recorded. All that current historians know about her is that she is said to have received her powers at the age of 13, and that she was born blind. For many years many people did not believe she actually existed, or that she was a myth because she was not buried officially, and her name and face had been burned out in almost all history books from that time period. It is widely believed that she received a blessing from the goddess Zopha because some of the texts found during that time period state that she had the ability to part oceans at will.

The main conspiracy with Karniode's life ironically is her death some say she stumbled off a cliff and died some say she was pushed by a member of her family with ill intent. But everyone can agree on the fact that she was definitely buried in the kingdom of the god's making her the third of the four saints buried amongst the gods.

After Karniode death her village was completely devastated by a tsunami and many of the villagers died. Those that survived only talk of her in passing they often referred to her as "Gentle one". Many believe that this nickname might have reflected her position within their society.

He also helped to spread the idea of free speech and press letting people talk about him as they saw fit he is quoted as having said " If you have no enemies then you have no friends, for enemies will always find a way into your company claiming they are your friends."

Their statues stood all around the city, acting as walls, her statue was located in the center visibly smaller than the others. She spent her whole life helping her people and recognizing her predecessors for their talents.

She is noted for having the most accomplishments among all the saints including the creation of several military strategies, an official legal court, the construction of an international trade route, and the creation of Tanya's (public hospitals).

She is widely known for having been obsessed with her fellow Saints especially saint Malign(the saint that came before her) and worshipping him like an idol. She thought that Malign was taken before his time and spent her entire life trying to spread his beliefs.

Duri spent most of her life on the battlefield fighting for her country. She is known to have never lost a battle and to be a true upholder of Honor.

She is the last of the four saints to be buried amongst the gods. She was buried amongst them for all her accomplishments.

Many historical texts describe Duri as cold and standoffish but through the finding of her diaries, a softer side of her was revealed. She wrote down the name of every man she had killed in detail and wrote the words I am sorry by each of their names. 12. Reron

48 YEARS OLD

Saint Reron was blessed by the god Vapaz . Reron was the second of the two saints blessed by Vapaz. Reron is considered to be a taboo saint in a sense because depending on who is telling the story he was or was not a saint. Reron is nicknamed the"ender of worlds."He destroyed villages and killed many people at will with his abilities because he felt as if the people of his world had wronged him. They thought him to be the bastard son of Vapaz and a mortal woman named Mevi. They hung his mother after labeling her a witch and a temptress who seduced the god Vapaz. And left young Reron to be a beggar after he manifested his abilities at twenty four they used his wife and kids to threaten him to perform his duties as a saint. After a while, eventually, the people holding his family hostage killed his wife and eldest daughter. Luckily Reron was able to escape with his youngest child after escaping he hid her in a surrounding village never to see her again. He died at the battle of Relirian after being ambushed by the people who killed his wife and child despite his death he was able to make it so no one made it out of the battle alive. Many sympathize with him saying that he only killed and destroyed to avenge his family but many others say that he abused his power as a saint for petty revenge.
